

https://www.mdjonline.com/news/education/kennesaw-state-university-professor-receives-honor/article_334a2aaa-36eb-11e9-8713-635dd79e5fdd.html

Kennesaw State University professor receives honor

By Mdj Staff
Feb 22, 2019

Brian Culp

Brian Culp, a professor in the WellStar College of Health and Human Services at Kennesaw State University in Georgia, was named the 34th fellow of the National Association for Kinesiology in Higher Education.

The distinction honors leaders in the field of kinesiology who have provided outstanding service to the organization through various contributions.

Dr. Culp's research interests focus on justice and the promotion of physical activity for marginalized communities. In addition to creating and facilitating opportunities for students to participate in research and civic engagement, he has helped design community-based and funded intergenerational programming for various populations.

He holds a bachelor's degree in health and physical education from the University of Georgia, a master's degree in sports administration from Georgia State University and an educational doctorate in curriculum and instruction from the University of Georgia.